Protecting The Planet ...

Every day around the world news articles focus on sustainability and climate change issues.

This snapshot sets out, through research and analysis of information on SDG's available in the public domain, across 13 business sectors, to establish where leading companies see their greatest impact and influence.

This snapshot may act as a catalyst that will enable a company to align its own SDG's with those recorded as 'high consensus' within their business sector.

- ECoLibri thanks the companies that have published their sustainability report or detailed their sustainability activities in the public domain.
 - ECoLibri recognises that some companies may not have referenced directly the three sector-agnostic SDG's, however it is clear in their sustainability strategies that these are implied in their climate change transition activities.
 - 83% of the companies covered within this snapshot refer to their contribution and impact against selected SDG's
- However ...
- Only 33% report to the UNGC via Communications on Progress
- UNGC has recognised that "The world is not delivering progress towards the SDGs at the pace and scale needed" and has launched 'SDG Ambition' (a six month accelerator programme beginning in October 2022).
 - The ethos behind the foundation of ECoLibri is that every contribution to a sustainable future matters (the fable of the Hummingbird)

Every day purchasing (resp. selling) choices are made by companies and individuals which are influenced by product sustainability and their suppliers' (resp. customers') commitment to a brighter future for the planet.

ECoLibri's mission is to encourage far more companies to publish SDG targets and performance on company websites to promote their positive impact on SDG's and reputational responsibilities.
